This Quick Guide provides a compilation and brief description of state laws recently enacted for Pennsylvania’s communities to address the problem of vacant, abandoned and blighted private property.

While addressing blight is a local concern, the solutions are largely enabled by state law. Over the past several years the Pennsylvania General Assembly, in response to demand by local communities, has begun to modernize antiquated laws that stand in the way of local efforts. New individual laws are beginning to weave a “policy infrastructure,” or toolkit to transform blighted and abandoned property into quality homes people can afford, gardens and farms for fresh food, new business and industry that create local jobs. This Quick Guide describes these NEW TOOLS WE HAVE.

This Quick Guide also includes NEW TOOLS WE NEED (but do not yet have), to craft a strong, innovative land recycling system for Pennsylvania. Without these new tools, local communities will continue to be stymied in their efforts to reclaim the blighted and abandoned property that plagues them.

Organization of this Quick Guide:

- A TABLE OF CONTENTS lists the tools in the categories described below.
- A NEW TOOLS MATRIX lists new tools alphabetically and jurisdictional application (cities, counties, etc.), so you can see what laws apply to your borough, township, city or county.
- A GLOSSARY of legal terms helps to decode what these laws actually mean.
- Each TOOL WE HAVE (new laws) and TOOL WE NEED is briefly described on its own page with an overview of what it is intended to do and how to use it. The legal citation is provided so you can ask your local solicitor for more information and guidance.

All the NEW TOOLS described (both those WE HAVE and those WE NEED), are organized into four categories based on their role in a land recycling strategy:

- 1) Blight Prevention – because strong code enforcement is the most effective prevention
- 2) Acquisition – tools to take control of blighted and abandoned property while dealing with all its liabilities
- 3) Disposition – tools to transfer property for beneficial reuse
- 4) Redevelopment Incentives – to encourage and support private market investments in formerly blighted and abandoned properties

We hope you find this guide helpful. We intend to update it as new tools become available. Please let us know what you think!

Glossary of Terms Related to Blight and Abandonment

Abandoned Property

Technically, property that the owner voluntarily surrenders or relinquishes title to, with the intention of terminating ownership and possession, but without granting the property to another person. In practice, the word is used to describe property that no one is caring for. Few owners formally surrender title to properties, but owners or their heirs do walk away from properties, leaving them “abandoned.”

Abate/Abatement

Eliminating or lessening a problem.

Affidavit

A voluntary declaration of facts written down and sworn to by the person declaring before an officer authorized to administer oaths, such as a notary public.

Appointment

Judge in the court with jurisdiction over a property designates a specific person or entity for a specific job, such as a Conservator under the Blighted and Abandoned Property Conservatorship Law, Act 2008-135.

Articles of Incorporation

Governing documents that detail the terms of a corporation’s existence including the number and classes of shares, the purpose and duration of the corporation.

Blight

This term has never been defined by the courts; rather it is defined by a variety of specific laws. Therefore, a variety of conditions may be required to determine a property blighted, depending on the law(s) applied. That being said, ‘blight’ refers generally to deteriorating property conditions that have deleterious effects on the community in which the property is situated.

CDC

Community Development Corporation (CDC) is a broad term referring to private nonprofit entities, typically serving a low-income community constituency, governed by a community-based board, producing affordable housing, commercial, and/or industrial business-enterprise development, and usually serving a specific geographic location such as a neighborhood or a town.

Code

A building, housing, property maintenance, fire, health or other public safety ordinance enacted by a political subdivision.

Conservator

A person or entity determined to be competent and appointed by a Court of Common Pleas Judge for the protection, rehabilitation or demolition of a property under the Blighted and Abandoned Property Conservatorship Law, Act 2008-135.

Condemnation

The process of taking private property for public use through the power of eminent domain.

S. §5860.501(c); Act 5 of 1998.	Tax foreclosure laws traditionally provide for the property owner to redeem their property after it has been subject to a tax sale. Post-sale redemption by the property owner creates periods of uncertainty while waiting on whether property owners will avail themselves of the right to redeem. Uncertainty significantly diminishes the marketability of properties and discourages investment. Property owner redemption should be available prior to a tax sale only, not after a tax sale. The Housing Alliance supports homeowner protections, like more notice and affordable installment payment plans, well in advance of tax sale. MCTLL was amended to eliminate redemption on vacant properties. There is a redemption period of nine months for occupied properties. Because the occupied versus vacant status of a property is difficult to ascertain, title companies are not inclined to insure any properties until after the nine month redemption period. Under the RETSL there is no right of redemption. See also ACQUISITION - Elimination of Post-Sale Redemption, under New Tools We Need.

The first is an ‘upset sale’ where property is exposed to a public auction for the ‘upset price,’ a dollar amount that satisfies the debt against the property. If there is no bid at upset sale, a second sale known as a ‘judicial sale’ or a ‘free and clear sale’ extinguishes liens against the property. A one-sale process is the modern trend. A single free and clear sale along with modernized due process notice and foreclosure processes significantly expedites tax foreclosure and the viability and re-use of blighted and abandoned properties. MCTLL generally requires both an upset sale and a judicial sale, but MCTLL provisions that apply to Philadelphia have long allowed a one-sale process. MCTLL amendments in 2003 allowed a single free and clear sale and modernized notice requirements to apply in Allegheny County. 2003 MCTLL amendments also expanded the law’s definitions, made attorney fees recoverable, clarified calculation of interest, municipal assignment (sale) of liens, and assignee rights. See also ACQUISITION – Single Free and Clear Sale, under New Tools We Need.

Category: ACQUISITION – Real Estate Tax Delinquency

New Tool We Need: Land Bank Authorizing Legislation

What would this tool do?

Authorize local, stand-alone, single-purpose entities whose sole function is to acquire, manage and dispose of tax delinquent or abandoned properties.

For what type of property?

Abandoned or tax delinquent properties.

Where would it apply?

Wherever a municipality or municipalities jointly agree to create a land bank.

Who could use this tool?

All counties and all municipalities with populations of 10,000 or more; smaller municipalities that join with eligible jurisdictions.

What would be required to use this tool?

Eligible counties and municipalities would establish land banks by ordinance; smaller municipalities could join with eligible jurisdictions through Intergovernmental Cooperation Agreements.

How would it be done?

The legislation would specify the structure of the land bank and its powers and duties related to acquisition, maintenance, and disposition of real estate, and to financing.

Land banking represents the best new thinking about how to aggressively and affirmatively deal with blighted, abandoned and tax foreclosed property which is currently sitting fallow, unavailable to the market for appropriate development and bringing down property values in the adjacent area. Land banks, piloted in Flint, Michigan, are single-purpose, public entities charged with compiling, managing and marketing the inventory of tax delinquent and abandoned properties, with the goal of getting them back into productive reuse. The job of the land bank is to bring transparency, efficiency and predictability to land recycling, to make land more readily available for reuse, and to support revitalization efforts as defined locally.

Land banks set priorities for the reuse of land, are overseen by an unpaid Board of Directors that hires their own staff or integrates its staffing function within existing government operations.

While land banks can be established now, authorizing legislation would provide certain powers, such as the ability to negotiate with municipalities for tax delinquent properties, expedited quiet title procedures, and the land bank's tax-exempt status. Real estate held by land banks is tax exempt so that debt does not continue to accrue on the unproductive property.

Without land banks in place, tax delinquent properties are exposed at public auction to be sold to the highest bidder, without regard to his or her capacity for development or impact of the sale on the adjacent properties or community. Or they continue to sit in limbo without a buyer amassing debt and further harming the community.

Ideally, land banks are built upon a property tax collection system that includes:

- strong homeowner protections;
- effective notice to all parties prior to tax sale;
- a single free and clear tax sale;
- transfer of unsold, tax sale properties to a locally created, fully empowered, self-sufficient land bank for management and disposition.

New Tool We Need: Bulk Sales
What would this tool do? Expedite the processing of tax delinquent properties through the tax sale system, and reduce per property foreclosure costs; deter speculation. For what type of property? Tax delinquent properties exposed to public auction (tax sale). Where would it apply? Everywhere in Pennsylvania. Who could use this tool? Municipalities or tax claim bureaus (TCBs) with multiple properties ready for tax sale. What would be required to use this tool? Multiple tax delinquent properties. This tool would work best where there is an established land bank to receive the properties. How would it be done? Municipality or TCB would file a single petition to take multiple properties to tax sale and could request permission to sell the properties as a package rather than individually. All applicable tax sale law procedures would apply.	Bulk sale is one of many possible elements to create easier, faster and cheaper tax sale procedures to support land banking of unsold tax delinquent properties. Bulk tax sales allow for a single petition to be filed with the court overseeing the tax sale, instead of filing one petition per tax delinquent parcel. It serves to reduce the per parcel costs of the foreclosure proceeding, title clearing and transfer to a land bank. Additionally, by bundling properties for a single bid, municipalities or TCBs can better control redevelopment or direct properties into a land bank. Bulk sales are part of Michigan’s foreclosure and land bank process. Requiring a bid on the entire package of properties eliminates the speculative purchaser of per parcel real estate purchases common at Pennsylvania tax sales. The Real Estate Tax Sale Law (RETSL) and the Municipal Claims and Tax Lien Law (MCTLL) allow multiple properties in a single petition but there is uncertainty if just a single bid can be requested. Reform of this provision would give local communities another tool to manage the foreclosure process and land bank operation. See also ACQUISITION – Joint Petitions, under New Tools We Have.

New Tool We Need: Elimination of Post-Sale Redemption

What would this tool do?

Create strong homeowner protections prior to tax sale and eliminate post-sale redemption rights under Pennsylvania’s tax collection and tax sale laws.

For what type of property?

Tax delinquent properties.

Where would it apply?

Everywhere in Pennsylvania.

Who could use this tool?

The foreclosing municipality and the homeowner.

What would be required to use this tool?

All applicable real estate tax collection and tax foreclosure procedures.

How would it be done?

Homeowners would be notified of the protections available to them well in advance of a tax sale.

Tax sale laws traditionally provide for the property owner to redeem the property after tax sale upon payment of original tax due, penalty, interest, and costs plus an additional 10%. Post-sale redemption is out of reach for most homeowners, so it offers them little protection. It does, however, create uncertainty for the real estate title, causing purchasers to delay making investments in the properties.

RETSL currently allows hardship protections, but does not require municipalities or TCBs to offer them. Under MCTLL, there is a nine-month right of redemption for occupied properties. For vacant properties, there is no right of redemption, but title companies are reluctant to issue title insurance until after nine months from sale. Under RETSL there is no right of redemption.

Property tax collection and foreclosure should include:

- strong homeowner protections in advance of tax sale;
- effective, constitutionally strong notice to all parties prior to tax sale;
- single free and clear tax sale.

New Tool We Need: Single Free and Clear Sale (Statewide)
What would this tool do? Amend PA’s tax sale laws to allow for a single free and clear sale instead of the current two-sale process (upset and judicial), to modernize and expedite property tax foreclosure. For what type of property? Property with municipal claims or liens for delinquent real estate taxes. Where would it apply? Everywhere in Pennsylvania. Who could use this tool? The foreclosing municipality. What would be required to use this tool? A claim or lien against a property for delinquent real estate taxes or other municipal charges. How would it be done? Constitutionally required notice to owners prior to sale; clear title to purchasers at the single free and clear sale.	The traditional tax sale process provides for two tax sales. The first is an ‘upset sale’ where property is exposed to a public auction with the highest bid starting at the ‘upset price,’ a dollar amount satisfying the municipal debt against the property. The second sale is a ‘judicial sale’ or a ‘free and clear sale’ that extinguishes all debt against the property. A one-sale process is the modern trend. A single free and clear sale, along with modernized notice requirements, can significantly expedite tax foreclosure and the viability and reuse of blighted and abandoned properties. MCTLL generally requires an upset sale and a judicial sale, but MCTLL provisions that only apply to Philadelphia and Allegheny County allow for a single free and clear sale. 2003 amendments also modernized notice requirements for tax sales in Allegheny County. Similar notice requirements and single sales should be available throughout Pennsylvania. Property tax collection and sales should include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • strong owner-occupant protections in advance of tax sale; • effective notice to all parties prior to tax sale; • single free and clear tax sale. See also ACQUISITION – Single Free and Clear Sale, under New Tools We Have.

New Tool We Need: Right of First Refusal
What would this tool do? Give a municipality or redevelopment authority the right to match the highest bid for a property sold at tax sale. For what type of property? Tax delinquent properties that are sold at tax sale. Where would it apply? Everywhere in Pennsylvania. Who could use this tool? Any municipality or RA. What would be required to use this tool? The municipality or RA would have to invoke its right of first refusal with the sheriff or other official conducting the tax sale. How would it be done? Municipality or RA would have to be aware of a particular property of interest that is up for tax sale and then exercise its right of first refusal after the sale.	A right of first refusal (ROFR) is like a trump card giving a right to match a highest bid on a property at tax sale. The municipality or redevelopment authority (RA) for the area in which the property is located would use its ROFR within 10-15 days after a tax sale at which there is a high bid. ROFR would be a way to respond to a concern that the high bidder will not responsibly invest in the property. This also eliminates concerns if the high bidder is a known speculator whose ownership may negatively impact other investments and development next to or near the tax delinquent property. The municipality or redevelopment authority would have to match the high bid, then purchase and take title to the property. The municipality and redevelopment authority typically do not want to purchase properties, but ROFR gives them the option to gain control of strategic parcels. The acquisition costs are very certain after the tax sale, so the municipality or redevelopment authority can determine with some certainty whether the costs outweigh the risks of acquisition. This is preferable to bidding at the auction where the ultimate price is unknown and the act of bidding would actually drive up the price that the municipality or RA would have to pay.

New Tool We Need: Landlords with Revoked Rental License

The Real Estate Tax Sales Law (RETSL) prohibits a landlord whose rental license has been revoked by a municipality within a county holding a tax sale from purchasing property at a tax sale. RETSL does not apply in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties or the City of Scranton. The Municipal Claims and Tax Lien Law (MCTLL) governs municipal claim and property tax enforcement in these areas. MCTLL enforcement culminates with a Sheriff Sale on the properties that have unpaid claims and tax liens. MCTLL should be amended to prohibit any landlord whose rental license has been revoked by any municipality from purchasing property that is sold for unpaid taxes or municipal claims at Sheriff Sale. See also ACQUISITION – Landlords with Revoked Rental License, under New Tools We Have.

New Tool We Need: Smart Rehab Code
What would this tool do? Providing code flexibility to best fit the extent of the rehabilitation intended to be undertaken by a private owner, investor or contractor; distinguish between rehab, change in use, and additions. For what type of property? Existing structures in need of rehab. Where would it apply? Everywhere in Pennsylvania. Who could use this tool? Private owners/contractors working with the code official. What would be required to use this tool? Code official would use smart code standards in issuing a building permit. How would it be done? Property owner and contractor (and architect) would determine the work needed on the property; code official would apply the appropriate standards under the Smart Code.	Since 2003, the International Existing Building Code (IEBC) has been part of Pennsylvania’s Uniform Construction Code (UCC). Unlike the IEBC, which puts existing structures into a single category, smart rehab employs three distinct categories: rehabilitation, change of use, and additions. Rehabilitation is further divided into four categories which relate to the extent of work that is to be undertaken: Repair, Renovation, Alteration, and Reconstruction. Smart code provides flexible code standards that best fit the extent of the rehabilitation contemplated. Smart rehab includes provisions for buildings that meet the standards for historic buildings under State and Federal agencies. New Jersey’s code excludes the IEBC and instead uses their homegrown, stand-alone "smart rehab code." After adoption in 1998, construction work in existing structures in the five largest cities increased by 60% compared to 1.6% the prior year. NJ’s Rehab subcode has become a national model for success in revamping older buildings and encouraging economic revitalization of impoverished communities. (Primary source: Overview of the Rehabilitation Subcode, By George Spais, New Jersey Builders Association, 2005) See also REDEVELOPMENT INCENTIVES – Existing Structures Code, under New Tools We Have.

New Tool We Need: Residential Title Claims
What would this tool do? Give longtime residents the opportunity to take ownership of their homes when the record owners have abandoned the properties. For what type of property? Occupied properties where the property’s legal owner cannot be found. Where would it apply? Everywhere in Pennsylvania. Who could use this tool? Long-term residents living in properties where the record owner cannot be found would have the opportunity to make a claim to title based on their possession and the lack of any action by the owner. What would be required to use this tool? Continuous occupancy for 10 years after the owner of record has disappeared. How would it be done? The resident would file a lawsuit to quiet title.	Some of our responsible, long-term residents live with the uncertainty of not being able to obtain title to the homes they are living in because the record owner died or moved and abandoned the property, leaving the property title in legal limbo. Without property titled in their names, residents may be cut off from property insurance, grants or loans for home repair, utility discounts or real estate tax abatements, and payment plans for real estate tax delinquencies. With this tool, these residents may file “quiet title” court actions based in the law of adverse possession after 10 years, rather than the otherwise applicable 21 years. The current 21-year waiting period can force residents to vacate their homes because, over the course of two decades, properties need significant system upgrades, i.e. roof, plumbing, electrical. Without title to the property, they are unable to obtain necessary financing for the expensive upgrades that our older housing stock needs. These become the abandoned properties local governments end up having to demolish at taxpayer expense.
